

This year's President's Award recipient has contributed countless volunteer hours helping BOMA reduce the unfair share of the commercial property tax burden. Paul Sullivan is an owner & partner with the appraisal & tax firm of Burgess Cawley Sullivan. He is, without doubt, the leading expert on property taxation in Vancouver and the primary representative for BOMA in its on-going lobby campaign to address City of Vancouver tax inequities. Paul's comprehensive understanding of tax issues, his ability to communicate complex tax policy and his persistence has helped BOMA save well over $100 million for its membership in accumulative tax shifts since 2005. Paul has chaired the BOMA tax committee for about a decade, represented BOMA on the both the Vancouver Fair Tax and Parking Tax Coalitions, and assisted BOMA with Green Tax credit initiatives. He is also currently a BOMA Director.
